

About your review of trustpilot.com

Innocent Bystander <trueassoul@gmail.com>
To: Trustpilot Content Integrity <contentintegrity@trustpilot.com>

Wed, Aug 6, 2025 at 2:20 PM

Thanks for the extra evidence, I've already contacted the ACCC and the European Commission

The screenshot shows an email from Trustpilot Content Integrity. The main body of the email contains the following text:

Hi Integrity, Righteous, Resolute,

Thanks for writing a review on Trustpilot's profile page.

Unfortunately, your review didn't make it online, or we've had to take it offline because our automated technology detected that your review seems to be about a different business, not Trustpilot. You can find a copy of your review at the bottom of this email.

Here's why:

Each business has its own profile page on Trustpilot, showcasing reviews and information about them. Your review was posted on Trustpilot's own profile page, which is meant for reviews about Trustpilot.

If you'd like to review a particular business, you can search for their profile page on Trustpilot's homepage and write your review.

Think we've made a mistake?

If you think we've got it wrong and your review describes your experience with the Trustpilot platform, please let us know by replying to this email.

Thanks,

Here's a copy of your review:

Scam. Stay away! He takes your money and deleted your server is you disagree with anything he says

Visit Trustpilot | Help Center | Trustpilot Privacy Policy

The email also includes a screenshot of a Trustpilot review that has been removed. The review text is: "Absolute SCAM. Scam. Stay away! He takes your money and deleted your server is you disagree with anything he says". The review was posted 14 hours ago by Robert McDonovan. A reply from Anthony Brodie is also visible, stating: "You can't delete a server? Can you guys stop posting lies please. I have already contacted the authorities in the UK, USA, Australia and Canada. If these attacks continue I will press charges against you and trustpilot."

On Wed, Aug 6, 2025 at 2:06 PM Trustpilot Content Integrity <contentintegrity@trustpilot.com> wrote:

Hi Integrity, Righteous, Resolute,

Thanks for writing a review on Trustpilot's profile page.

Unfortunately, your review didn't make it online, or we've had to take it offline because our automated technology detected that your review seems to be about a different business, not Trustpilot. You can find a copy of your review at the bottom of this email.

Here's why:

Each business has its own profile page on Trustpilot, showcasing reviews and information about them. Your review was posted on Trustpilot's own profile page, which is meant for reviews about Trustpilot.

If you'd like to review a particular business, you can search for their profile page on Trustpilot's homepage and write your review.

Think we've made a mistake?

If you think we've got it wrong and your review describes your experience with the Trustpilot platform, please let us know by replying to this email.

Thanks,

Here's a copy of your review:

Scam. Stay away! He takes your money and deleted your server is you disagree with anything he says

Visit Trustpilot | Help Center | Trustpilot Privacy Policy